

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

June 8, 2024

It's an honor to join North Brentwood in celebrating your 100th anniversary.

The places we call home and the people who raised us will always be a part of us. My hometown shaped the person I am today and the values I hold dear not only as President but also as a husband, a parent, a grandparent, and an American. In small towns and big cities in every corner of our country, there's a common pride that runs deep and a faith in the promise of America that runs even deeper. The strength of our communities is rooted in our unwavering belief that, here in the United States, nothing is beyond our capacity when we work together and are guided by our highest ideals.

On this wonderful occasion, I hope you are filled with pride as you reflect on your rich history. And as you look to the incredible opportunities before you, may you remain inspired by the endless possibilities of what we can achieve in our great Nation. Keep the faith!
